"Colorful" Wedding At Justice Court

Judge John Dennis of the justice court officiated at a truly "colorful" wedding Wednesday afternoon when Louis D. Coleman, aged 52, residing at 929-B West Sixth street, and Pochabonta Gould, aged 20, of 1059 West Sixth street, San Pedro, appeared before him to be united in matrimony. Both are Negroes. Coleman, a former army man, is black as the proverbial ace of spades, his bride a few shades lighter. Coleman, explained to the judge that he had had his license to wed for a year but that he just couldn't get time to make the appointment to wed until yesterday when the license was due to expire.
Judge Dennis also on Wednesday officiated at the wedding of Salvador Ramirez and Celia Gardaja, both of Torrance.

Protest Attempt to Abolish Referee of Land Title Court

Protest against any attempt to abolish the referee of land title court was filed with the board of supervisors this week by the Torrance Chamber of Commerce. On behalf of the thousands of property owners throughout the county whose property is registered under the Torrens title system.
While there is considerable property in this community registered under the Torrens system, which plan was voted by a large majority in 1914, more than one-half the property in the Sunland-Tujunga area is under the state system. The Torrens system now is in operation in many counties and in 24 states of the union, the chamber pointed out.
To remove this court or the referee might endanger our holdings, as this court gives special attention to problems involving third title laws, the commissioner explained. It also called attention to the fact that the court has made itself self-sustaining although other duties have been placed upon it.

Keeping Up With Torrance High

To eliminate all difficulties which may arise, Mrs. Engel, dramatics teacher, has chosen two casts for the coming junior play, "Siddoning." The two casts read: Marion, Virginia Michelson, Ruth Nahmens, Estelle, Blanche Diethers, Audree Roque; Myra, Alice Burger, Kathryn Frits; Mrs. Hardy, Dorothy McMillan, Eleanor Austin; Aunt Milly, Katherine Mitchell, Mary Peckham; Andy, Bill Burkett, Alfred Bunje; Grandpa, Tommy Rogers, Dale Howe; Stubbins, James Lee, Eugene Stegelmyer.
The date of the play is yet to be announced.

Several seniors are planning to attend the Citizens' Military Training Camp at Monterey. The boys who are thinking about going are Francis Laven, William Laven, Elmer Munson, Melvin Howard, Bob Carson, George Figueroa and James McLean.

A majority of the boys have already spent a season at camp.

Mildred Lukes, 33 words; Alfred Kanyashit, 30 words. The latter students must have typed at the rate of 30 or more words per minute.
The variety vaudeville show, which was originally planned to be held March 17, has been indefinitely postponed. The auditorium is being repaired, and because of this fact there has been no opportunity for practice sessions.

A new Sheaffer fountain pen filling station has been opened at the student store. By the device, a cent is inserted into the machine which automatically releases a lever controlling a slot from which ink is obtained. The station was obtained from a Chicago book firm. It is expected that the station will serve as a convenience to students, and at the same time prove a profit to the store.

At the bi-monthly social dance, which was held today, the Washington orchestra of Los Angeles furnished the music.
The social dances are sponsored by the student body, the Wednesday senior dance having been discontinued. All profits gained through the dance go to the student fund.

Due to the fact that students have not supported dances as they should, the physical education department has undertaken the task of teaching students how to dance.
